Well, here I sit on Pensacola Beach, so please excuse the sand in the article. I never thought that I would still be in Pensacola two years after graduation. Terry Cook has learned to write and I thought all he could do was program computers. He is in financial management at Quantico. Mark Fisher is the adjutant for OCS at Quantico. Joe Rheinhardt is also still running around Quantico in managements systems.

By now your eyes should be as sore as my hand. It was really nice having the mail to use, so thanks to all those who wrote. If you did not, this paragraph will self-destruct in ten seconds.

Well, much against the better judgement of my peers and contrary to all that we have been taught, I have been at sea for a couple of weeks, and we did not spot a single mail buoy. Should have a few notes for next month though. One note of interest however was a vignette in the local journal to the effect that Kevin Sinnett dropped down to the Boston Celtic rookie camp in Marshfield, Massachusetts, from the air station in Brunswick, Maine. His mission? To shoot a few with the likes of Larry Bird and other young men at the basketball training camp.

Okay, everybody on the stick and let's have some news.
